

A new five-hundred ton press straightener was recently installed, as the second in a series of capital investments, that are part of Crucible's finishing modernization plan